

WORKBOOK + PLANNER

Money Mindset & Your First Real Budget

Stop feeling broke and start feeling in control — a workbook with budget pages that survive real life

Before you begin

If money makes you anxious, you are far from alone. Plenty of people with decent incomes still avoid opening their banking app, because not knowing feels safer than knowing.

The good news: feeling in control of money has less to do with how much you earn than with what you do with attention. Looking regularly, deciding on purpose and building a small buffer changes how money feels surprisingly quickly.

This workbook starts with mindset — the beliefs that drive your spending — and then gives you a simple budget method and the pages to use it. It is general education, not personal financial advice, so adapt it to your own situation.

- Read one chapter at a time. They are short on purpose.
- Do each exercise in writing — on the page, not in your head.
- Use the trackers and planner pages at the back every day.
- Print it at home, or open it in a tablet app that lets you write on PDFs.

CONTENTS

What's inside

Chapter 1	Your money story
Chapter 2	Look at the numbers — gently
Chapter 3	A budget that survives real life
Chapter 4	Build a small buffer first
Chapter 5	Debt without shame
Chapter 6	Spending on purpose
Chapter 7	Talking about money
Chapter 8	Keep it going
Planner	Monthly budget — month one
Planner	Monthly budget — month two
Planner	Monthly budget — month three
Log	Expense log
Tracker	Debt list

These beliefs quietly steer adult decisions. Someone raised with scarcity might hoard or might overspend the moment money arrives. Someone who never saw money discussed might avoid it entirely.

- What did you hear about money growing up?
- What do you feel when you check your balance?
- Which beliefs help you, and which hold you back?

Write three messages about money you absorbed growing up. For each, write how it shows up in your spending today.
