

WORKBOOK

Habits That Stick

The small-habits workbook for building routines you keep — and breaking the ones you don't want

Before you begin

You already have hundreds of habits. You brush your teeth, check your phone, take the same route to work — all without deciding to. Habits are simply behaviours your brain has automated so it does not have to think about them.

Building a new habit is about teaching your brain to automate something new. That happens through repetition in a consistent context, not through bursts of enthusiasm.

This workbook shows you how to set habits up so that repetition is easy. Work through the chapters, write your habit plan, and use the trackers for the next three months.

- Read one chapter at a time. They are short on purpose.
- Do each exercise in writing — on the page, not in your head.
- Use the trackers and planner pages at the back every day.
- Print it at home, or open it in a tablet app that lets you write on PDFs.

CONTENTS

What's inside

Chapter 1	Why most habits fail
Chapter 2	Start smaller than feels sensible
Chapter 3	Anchor it to something you already do
Chapter 4	Obvious, easy, satisfying
Chapter 5	Friction: your secret weapon
Chapter 6	Become the kind of person who...
Chapter 7	Never miss twice
Chapter 8	Review and level up
Plan	My habit plan
Tracker	Habit tracker — month one
Tracker	Habit tracker — month two
Tracker	Habit tracker — month three

Why most habits fail

Habits usually fail for predictable reasons. They start too big. They depend on motivation, which comes and goes. They have no set time or trigger. And the first missed day turns into a missed week.

None of those is a character flaw. They are design problems — and design problems can be fixed.

As you read the rest of this workbook, look at the habits you have tried before. You will likely see exactly where the design broke.

- Too big, too vague, too dependent on mood.
- No clear trigger means no automatic behaviour.
- The failure point is usually the first missed day.

EXERCISE · HABIT POST-MORTEM

Think of a habit you tried and dropped. Which of the reasons above broke it? What would you design differently?

FREE SAMPLE

That's the end of the sample

The full Habits That Stick is 16 pages. Here is everything inside it:

- Chapter 1: Why most habits fail
- Chapter 2: Start smaller than feels sensible
- Chapter 3: Anchor it to something you already do
- Chapter 4: Obvious, easy, satisfying
- Chapter 5: Friction: your secret weapon
- Chapter 6: Become the kind of person who...
- Chapter 7: Never miss twice
- Chapter 8: Review and level up
- My habit plan
- Habit tracker — month one
- Habit tracker — month two
- Habit tracker — month three

Get the full PDF — $9